

A black and white photograph of an archaeological site. In the foreground, a large, flat, light-colored rock or slab is visible. To its left, a vertical scale bar with alternating black and white segments is partially visible. Above the slab, a horizontal scale bar with alternating black and white segments is placed. In the lower center, a small, dark, rectangular label with white text is positioned. The background shows a rough, uneven ground surface with various sized rocks and debris.
